Snow Slide at Created Butte

DENVER, March 13.—A special from Created Butte to the Republican says: Three more snow slide victims are reported this morning which has cast more gloom over our town. M. G. Crosier, Pat Murphy and Jack Griffen, who have been at work on the Jacob Strauder mine, are buried beneath the snow and we do not know how long they have to stand to go to aid their comrades. The slide is over half a mile wide and it would seem that the whole mountain has come down, filling the gulch with snow probably a hundred feet deep. The place has been considered very dangerous, so much so, that before the storm no one has dared to venture up there until yesterday when three men went to see if their fellow miners were safe. They found no signs of a slide and the tunnel entrance was entirely covered. By tunnelling through the snow for thirty feet they came to the house which was mashed in by snow. It is the general supposition that the poor fellows had become alarmed and started to leave the cave, being caught in their attempt to escape.

The Levee Was Cut.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 13.—Major J. H. Dabney, chief engineer of the levee board of the district in which the new Hodgson levee, which gave way yesterday, is situated, was in the city last night. He came direct from the crevasse at Tarpaphis. In conversation he said to a reporter: "The break is 175 feet wide and the water is running through about 8 feet deep, or was when I left there. The levee was cut or blown up without doubt. It was one of the finest and most substantial in the district. It was built two years ago by the government and the levee board jointly and has stood the long strain of last year without showing any evidence of weakening. As the water was very near the top on Wednesday it was intact."

Bad Weather in England.

LONDON, March 13. While throughout the London district a thaw has set in there are no signs of a moderation in the severity of the weather in the south of England. A heavy snow storm prevailed last night in Devonshire and Cornwall considerably adding to the suffering of the farmers of those counties and still further impeding the resumption of traffic on the railroads of the district.

The case of a number of these small villages their isolation is already causing considerable anxiety and actual starvation threatens in the face, should the weather not moderate shortly sufficiently to allow them to be reprovisioned.

In addition to the enormous losses suffered by the farmers in sheep and cattle, which have either been frozen to death in the fields or which have been buried beneath the mountains of snow drifts to be found on all sides, large numbers of horses have perished in a manner.

Wrecked by the Gale.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—At 11 o'clock this morning a gale of wind reaching the city of over forty miles an hour, swept over the city, causing considerable damage to property and injuring several persons.

The signal office reports that for a few minutes a velocity of forty-three miles an hour—the highest ever known in the city—was experienced. The walls of the Germania bank and Weldon building, the scene of Wednesday's fire, crumbled beneath the fury of the wind, and a large section of the bank wall fell through the roof of the Merchants and Manufacturers Insurance company building, breaking through the roof and three floors of the insurance company's building. The occupants barely escaped with their lives.

Mill and house chimneys all over both cities are reported damaged or blown down. Several of the largest plate glass windows in the city were blown in, that at G. W. Biggs & Co., jewelry store, fell on and severely injured several persons. In the Chartier's oil field, south of the city, the wind blew over a large number of derricks, causing considerable damage to oil wells.

Severe Storm at Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 13.—A northwest wind and a cloudy sky constituted the weather yesterday until about 4 o'clock when a fine, cold rain began to fall. By 6 30 o'clock the rain had changed to sleet and the ground was covered with an icy slush. About 7 o'clock it began snowing and a veritable blizzard set in which kept up until 11 o'clock when the snow ceased. No storm as severe as this has occurred in this region for many years.

Caught in the Ruins.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 13.—The walls of the Grand Opera house, which collapsed by fire a few weeks ago, and which have since remained standing, tottered outward into the street during a terrific storm at 8 o'clock this afternoon. At least two persons are thought to be under the fallen debris.

Flood Damages Spanish Wheat.

PETERSBURG, March 13.—Floods have followed the recently heavy snow and have destroyed one-half of the winter wheat crop in many places in Spanish Russia. The Vistula has overflowed its banks.

Ingalls' Future Plans.

BOSTON, Mass., March 13.—Ex-Senator Ingalls was among the passengers on board the Baltimore steamer yesterday. He has come to Massachusetts to visit his aged mother, who are spending the winter with Mr. S. W. Drover, their son-in-law, in West Roxbury. Mr. Ingalls' attention was called to the report that he had proposed entering the field of journalism in New York, but he said: "I shall enter no employment, however either active or lucrative, that will cause me to lose my citizenship. I am a Kansan and as such I shall remain. I have received a great many offers of various kinds since my successor was elected, and have declined them all. But after a short respite, I shall return to my own state and engage in some employment.

Londoner Gives Up.

DENVER, March 13.—The supreme court to-day handed down an opinion in the Wolfe Londoner mayoralty contest case denying a rehearing and for an hour and a half, between 10 and 11.30, the city of Denver was without a mayor. D. C. Packard, president of the board of supervisors, was sent for and to him Mr. Londoner turned over the office until it can be determined who is mayor.

Packard has already signed several ordinances and warrants.

Starving Miners' Riot.

ZANESVILLE, O., March 13.—Work at the coal mines of Prendville, Hocking county, twenty miles southwest of this city, has been suspended for several weeks. The miners are in destitute condition and the families of many of them are suffering for the necessities of life. Yesterday 50 of them proceeded in a body to McCoy & Williams' store, broke it open and carried off 30 barrels of flour and several hundred pounds of meat. They made no attempt to conceal their identity but said they had to steal or starve. Active measures are being taken to inquire into the wants of the people and relieve the suffering.

The Kilrain-Godfrey Fight.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—The fight between Jake Kilrain of Baltimore and George Godfrey of Boston for $2000, forty five hundred to winner, drew a "large, but very select" crowd to the California Athletic club to night. Among the prominent sporting men present were Joe Thomson, the Australian book maker; Joe Harris, backer of Jim Hall; Parson Davies, Millionaire Lucky Baldwin, Jim Corbett and Major McLaughlin. Both men showed up in fine form. Kilrain weighed 192 and Godfrey 164. Kilrain's seconds were Jim Hall and Mulqueen. Godfrey was seconded by Peter Jackson and Frank Steele of Boston. The mill began sharp at 9 p. m.

In the first round Godfrey started in on the aggressive, but Kilrain soon got the upper hand and kept it thereafter, on account of his greater length of arm. During a clinch in the ninth round Godfrey used his right on Kilrain's chest. This angered Kilrain, and Godfrey begged his pardon. Kilrain testily replied: "That's three times you've begged my pardon, but you are aiming for the spot all the time." After the breakaway Kilrain rushed matters a bit and got his revenge by planting a stiff left-hander in Godfrey's breadbasket.

After the twenty-second round Kilrain seemed to have everything his own way, but Godfrey took his punishment easily and came up smiling at the beginning of each round. In the twenty-sixth round Godfrey turned his body and made no return. Kilrain still smashed away, throwing all his energy into his blows, and still Godfrey took them. The gong sounded while Kilrain was still at work. Godfrey sat in his corner with a smile on his face, evidently trying to let Kilrain wear himself out. In the forty-fourth and last round Kilrain forced the fighting, following Godfrey all around the ring, smashing him wickedly and repeatedly, and finally knocking him out.

Investigating the Census.

NEW YORK, March 13. Superintendent Porter continued his testimony this evening. He believed that certain statistical questions should be omitted from the taking of census. He said that if he could get the documents from the police court he could within two weeks tell if a new count was necessary. The witness considered that the pay of the enumerators of the last census was altogether too small.

Secretary Noble corrected the witness relative to making a recount of this city, but the trouble was that the witness had no means to locate the difference between the police and federal counts. If that was possible the question might be settled, but as the bureau had already taken 1,500,000 names it could not do it over again.

The point was then brought out that if the proper application had been made to the witness instead of the attorney general the witness would have been compelled to have granted it. If the matter had been left to the witness to arrange with Mr. Kenny, he considered that a satisfactory conclusion would have been reached.

Adjourned until to-morrow.

The Bay Robbers.

KANSAS CITY, March 13. The police of Armourdale have succeeded in unearthing one of the biggest robberies ever known of in the vicinity of Kansas City. Since 6 o'clock last evening between twenty-five and thirty men and boys of Armourdale have been arrested, charged with breaking open grain cars in the Rock Island and Union Pacific yards and stealing grain.

The stealing was done, it appears, by an organized band of thieves composed of boys ranging in age from 10 to 16 years, who break open the cars and steal the grain. It is thought that this system of thieving has been carried on for a number of months past and thousands of bushels of grain have been carried off. The names of grain dealers who received the grain were made known to the police and the arrests of a number of them will follow.

Further Defalcations Reported.

ST. LOUIS, March 13.—A dispatch from Little Rock, Ark., says that rumors of an additional shortage in the accounts of ex Treasurer Woodruff are again flying fast and furious. It is said he is short more than $100,000 in scrip. Members of the joint committee investigating the office, with one exception, refuse to talk at all upon the subject and it is impossible to learn anything authentic. Senator Tillman, a member of the committee, says there is no truth whatever in the report.

An Amicable Adjustment.

PUEBLO, March 13.—The Denver and Rio Grande board of inquiry adjourned at a late hour this evening, having completed its labors. The meeting between the board and the employes committee has been a very amicable one and although the members refuse to say what their recommendation will be, it is probably that they will be favorable to most of the requests made by the men. The recommendations will be forwarded to General Manager Smith at Denver and will not be made public unless he desires to do so.

The Millington Trial.

DENVER, March 13.—There were scenes and tableaux in the Millington trial this morning. There were a few impromptu theatrics, and Judge Ballard was the star performer. It was at the end of Verdie Cunningham's examination. Judge Ballard had promised on the former examination that he would let the defense have the statement that Verdie made and signed when she was examined before she went on the stand. Mr. Thomas said the defense was entitled to it, as it was evidence in the case. Suddenly Judge Ballard jumped up, raised his clenched fist melodramatically to heaven, stood up on his toes, pursed his lips, glared around and shouted in a deep, leonine way: "'Tis false—false as hell!"

The old lady who sits in the front row held up her hands in horror at this remark and Judge Downer shouted to the attorney: "Sit down!" Judge Ballard collapsed as though the house had fallen upon him.

The court then decided that as the papers were the private notes of the prosecution the defense was not entitled to them.

Judge Ballard then made an apology to the court and attorneys for his language, then suddenly he announced that he would introduce the whole statement if the defense would agree not to object to it.

"We'll let it go in; we won't object," said Mr. Patterson and Thomas together, and so the paper was introduced.

Verdie Cunningham was recalled and turned over to the torture of Mr. Thomas for cross-examination, but her testimony of yesterday could not be materially changed.

I. N. Carleton, a painter of Fort Collins, was the next witness. He stated that while preparing Millington's room one day, Millington entered, and picking up Mrs. Avery's photograph made a foul remark about her and his relations with her. These remarks he did not consider secret, and he repeated them to his partner.

This afternoon Judge Belford read Verdie's statement. It was even more gossipy than her statement on the stand. It was full of little circumstances. Mrs. Avery said at one time that if anything happened to Mr. Avery she would not wipe her foot on Millington. She said she married Mr. Avery for his money. At one time, according to the statement, Mrs. Avery complained to Verdie that Mr. Avery scolded her. She said: "I will not, after this, live to morrow." At another time she said: "Mr. Avery thinks that I am the cause of his sickness," and Pearl said: "Don't believe everything." Verdie in her statement went on to say she used to tease Mrs. Avery and do all sorts of things to see if she liked her husband.

After the reading of Verdie's statement this afternoon, Father Robinett was called. He was formerly priest of the Ft. Collins parish but is now at Central City. When called he identified first the following letter:

DENVER, July 3.

DEAR FATHER ROBINETT: When you come down to Denver next time will you call at my home, I want to see you very much.

[Signed] DIXIE WILLINGTON.

He stated that he did not make the call as requested, but afterwards saw her on the street and conversed with her.

"Frank Millington afterwards approached me and began his conversation with these words: 'I suppose you know the excitement in Fort Collins,'" said the father; "I said so, I had been in Denver all the week. Then I excused myself and told him if he wanted to talk to me he could come to the house. He came to me that evening and talked about an hour; I did not say anything, I merely told him that in matters of this kind I preferred to be neutral. Then he spoke about the poison, and said if they had feared poison they could have used Marsh's test; he remembered that from the Witter trial."

The examination and cross examination lasted several hours without bringing out any evidence of importance, after which the trial was adjourned until to-morrow.

Afraid of the Mafia.

NEW ORLEANS, March 13. The trial of nine Sicilians for the assassination of Chief of Police Hennessey at 11 22 o'clock on the night of October 15th, which has occupied the time of Judge Baker's division of the criminal district courts since the 16th of February, was concluded this afternoon, the jury bringing in a verdict of not guilty as to six of the accused and failed to agree upon a verdict as to the other three.

When the jury handed in their verdict Judge Baker looked at it for some moments before he handed it over to Minute Clerk Screven. There was apprehensive silence while these preliminaries were going on. The prisoners stood up and there was a look of infinite woe pictured on the face of Machera and some of the others. Of course Matranga and Incardona were disinterested. They knew they had been acted, and their only interest in the matter was to see their friends or partners escape the fate which had threatened them for so long. The boy Marchesi showed no signs of emotion. The jury looked more concerned than any of them. Their faces were deathly pale and showed plainly the effect of their long deliberations.

Chief Clerk Screven read the verdict in a firm voice. As the verdict was read there was an audible expression of surprise and dissatisfaction. Judge Baker immediately discharged the jurymen and ordered the prisoners remanded as there was still another charge against them. The court then adjourned. When the jury left the court room they were surrounded by reporters, but none of them would discuss the case or how they reached the verdict. They kept together until they reached Lafayette square, where they were jeered at by a crowd who had already learned of the verdict.

The Behring Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister, was at the state department to day in consultation with Secretary Blaine. It is believed that their conference related to preliminary arrangements for a mutual understanding as to the questions to be submitted for arbitration in the Behring sea questions.

On the return of Attorney General Miller to Washington to-morrow from his trip to the Chickamauga battlefield, he will probably be consulted concerning the future policy to be pursued in the Sayward case, which the British government brought before the supreme court of the United States in order to secure a decision of that body on the act prohibiting the killing of fur seal in Behring sea.

The answer of the United States district court is not due until the second Monday in April, and it is probable that an endeavor will be made in the meantime to effect some sort of a compromise so that arbitrators, and not the supreme court, may render the first decision.

A Defective Law.

DENVER, March 13.—The new police board is in a muddle. The law which created it repealed articles 7 and 8 of the city charter which defined the duties of police officers, and now the police of the city have no more right to arrest a person than has any other citizen. To add to the board's trouble, it has been learned that it cannot use a single penny of the city's money without the sanction of the city council. This, unless some died, will bring the bugbear politics into this department which the commissioners are so anxious to keep pure and clean, for if the council so desires, it can tie up the police board, by refusing to allow it the necessary money to operate it.

According to an attorney, the city charter directs that all moneys required for the operation of the city government shall be audited by the city auditor and must be acted on favorably by the city council, before it can be appropriated.

The charter was drawn up with the idea evidently, that there never were such things as independent city departments, and unless the present legislature amends the charter in this regard, the police board will have very hard riding for the next two years. The legislature now in session will probably remedy this evil before adjourning.

Train Robbers Found Guilty.

DENVER, March 13.—A Trinidad special says: The train robbers, McCarthy, Gould and Carroll, who attempted to hold up a Santa Fe passenger train near here several months ago, in the district court to-day entered a plea of guilty as charged. The charge is attempted train robbery and assault with intent to kill.

Higgins, the fourth and last one is out on $5000 bond, which the court declared forfeited.

Eighth General Assembly.

SENATE.

DENVER, March 13.—The senate to day passed no measure of startling importance. The senate has concurred in adverse report on Howe's bill concerning a definition of water for domestic purposes.

Bills for third reading were four in number, as follows: Senator White's bill to amend section 149 of the criminal code. Senator Gelder's bill to authorize the state fish commissioner to construct and maintain a fish screen at the outlet of lower Twin Lake in Lake county; a bill by Senator White's bill to amend section 49 of the criminal code, Senator White's bill to amend Chapter 114 of statutes, entitled Revenue. All were passed, with the exception of the fish screen bill for lower Twin Lake, which was laid aside, out of courtesy to a similar measure of the lower house, which is now under consideration by the senate.

H. J. M. 4, in regard to the establishment of a soldiers' home at the Fort Lyons reservation was discussed by Senator Betts, who offered amendments to it, and the measure was reported upon favorably.

The house then went into committee of the whole on the apportionment bill. Senator Barela defended it for giving Boulder county, with 14,000 people, three members and Las Animas, with over 17,000, but two. Senator Steck declared the bill an outrage, as it virtually disfranchised one third of the voters of Arapahoe, Lake, Pueblo, and El Paso counties. Other senators denounced the measure as one prepared by a combine whose motives were of the worst character, and though it was bitterly denounced by several of the leading senators, it was finally recommended for passage. Adjourned.

HOUSE.

Some eighteen members of the house this morning attempted to obey the farcical action of that body yesterday in adjourning to 6 30 this morning. There not being a quorum present when the house was called to order the members lounged around the radiators and under the gas lights until the sergeant-at-arms visited the hotels and pulled the tardy members from their beds or from the breakfast table, and conducted them before the bar of the house, where each one was fined seven dollars. One member made the suggestion that the house should adjourn to the insane asylum in a body, and petitions that a ward should be set aside for their perpetual use were read. Someone else suggested that this indulgence in farce comedy was dangerous. They were liable to arrest for making an exhibition of themselves without a license.

This comedy continued until 8 o'clock, when the bill repealing an act establishing the bureau of immigration was taken up and tabled.

The appropriation bills for the maintenance of state normal, mining and agricultural schools were favorably passed upon. A bill appropriating $20,000 for current expenses of the insane asylum for the next two years, and $60,000 for the construction of a new wing, was passed.

On being called to order this afternoon, a bill regulating the operation of irrigating ditches and canals was taken up, and, after some discussion, was referred back to the committee on agriculture. A bill for the location of another insane asylum in the northern part of the state, near the town of Brighton was favorably reported. It was agreed that the house shall hereafter meet at 10 30 and continue in session until 3 30—but one session a day. Adjourned.

The Ducks are all Killed.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The president returned at 4 o'clock this afternoon from his duck shooting trip on Chesapeake bay. He expressed himself as well pleased with his success and the recreation the trip afforded him.

OUR NATION'S TRADE.

Weekly Review of Trade Situation and Prospects.

Increased Activity and a Promising Outlook.

Secretary Blaine's Latest Commercial Victory.

Ambassadors Will Arrange Reciprocity with Cuba.

Weekly Review of Trade.

NEW YORK, March 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade will say: Foreign influences have again disturbed the money market a little. The prospect for new railroad building and consequently for rail production is not helped by the monetary situation and stocks have been considerably weakened. But there is more active speculation in breadstuffs, pork products and cotton, which have all advanced and the outlook for farmers has rarely been better at this season than it is now. Of the great industries, nearly all are expanding and employing labor fully, but the coke strike and other causes have produced a remarkable shrinkage in the output of iron, the weekly output of all furnaces in blast March 1, being but 134,526 tons, against 146,050 February 1, a decrease of 13 per cent in a month. Belief that the coke strike will soon end in cheaper supplies of fuel, while the railroads west of Pittsburg have just agreed to reduce their charges, prompts consumers to expect lower prices soon, and though the market here has a better tone northern No. 1 is quoted as low as $17 and southern at $16.25.

The prospect for the building trades is rather dull here, but at other cities, particularly at the west, it is remarkably bright. The wool manufacturer is doing remarkably well, though the prices of goods do not advance, the mills engaged on dress goods and knit goods are especially active and the worsted works are on full time with fair prospects. In the boot and shoe industry, shops are fairly employed.

Reports from other cities are fairly favorable. Boston notes more buyers of boots and shoes. Crude rubber is firm but not active. The hardware trade is good. In jewelry, paints, liquors, tobacco and harness and saddles, trade is rather quiet. At Chicago the dry goods trade considerably exceeds last year's and the clothing and boots and shoes the situation is the same. Wool receipts are larger, wheat much larger and cured meats show an increase, and hides, oats and rye are about the same. In flour, corn, barley, lard and butter a decrease appears, and in dressed beef a decrease of half. Pittsburg notes no change in iron or rails but some improvement in window glass. At Cincinnati whisky advances with good sales and sales of tobacco are heavy. Cleveland notes hopefulness for the spring trade, and Detroit receives a prospect for great activity in building.

West of Chicago heavy snows and bad weather have had much influence, impeding the lumber trade. Reports from the entire south are a shade better, because cotton has recovered slightly in price.

The business failures occurring during the last seven days number, for the United States, 239, and for Canada 34; total, 273, as compared with a total of 265 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 202.

Reciprocity with Cuba.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The Star this evening hints that Secretary Blaine is looking after Cuban trade. It says: "The making of business treaties with neighboring countries is going right along, say the political gossips. It may be that a reciprocity arrangement with Cuba is not being considered, but if it is not, some people would like to know just what the Hon. John W. Foster and James G. Blaine, Jr., sailed for Europe for. They left on Wednesday on the Teutonic, and the knowing ones insist that Cuba is the prey they are after.

Mr. Foster has been prominent in the reciprocity negotiations with South American countries. His experience in Spain as minister, and his connection with the Latin-American countries has made him very valuable to Mr Blaine and the state department.

It is a well known fact that the next reciprocity proclamation will be with Cuba and Mr. Blaine has lent his greatest energies to this end.

The Direct Tax Money.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Governor Hill of New York, to day made application to the secretary of the treasury for the payment of the share of the state of New York of the direct tax. The application of New York's governor is the first received by the treasury department. The amount due New York is about $2,000,000. It will take about three weeks to properly audit and pass the account.

In the case of states where the tax was levied on individuals it will take possibly six months before the accounts are fully adjusted. As a rule all the northern and western states simply appropriated the money levied against the state under the direct tax law out of the state treasury, but in the southern states the tax was collected direct from the people, and in these cases the adjustment will be much more difficult and tedious than where the state paid the money directly from its treasury to the secretary of the treasury.

The Sioux Scout Indians.

CHICAGO, March 13.—The Evening Post this evening says: Buffalo Bill yesterday received from Secretary Noble the formal consent of the government to his taking the Indians confined at Fort Sheridan to Europe with his Wild West show, if they desire to go. The Indians are anxious to go and the party will leave here March 28 and sail for Europe on the first of April, returning in time for the World's fair.

Favoring Free Silver.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 13.—In the house to day Representative Reeve of Minneapolis introduced a resolution opposing the unlimited coinage of silver. The resolution was defeated by a vote of 66 to 48 against. Nearly every Alliance member voted against the resolution.

D. W. BEEBLE,
Manager of the GAZETTE.

There is evident fear of the Mafia in the verdict rendered in the Hennessy case in New Orleans. It is unworthy of American law and of American courage.

The literary matter for THE SUNDAY GAZETTE is the best that can be secured at the present time. It is not inferior in quality to that published in any first-class periodical.

In the dignified and august body [illegible] as the Colorado legislature, it was solemnly proposed that the house immediately adjourn to an insane asylum. In some respects this was the most sensible and satisfactory motion made this session.

Palmer Lake Herald complains that the GAZETTE does not give enough attention to Palmer Lake and the Divide generally. This is suggested because the GAZETTE gave a recent notice to Ute Pass summer resorts. We may not always get all the news that there is from the Divide or from Palmer Lake, but we always print whatever those interested are willing to send us, and we have made more effort in trying to get information from the Divide than any other equally distant part of the county. The article gives an entirely wrong impression, because the editor himself knows of the very friendly feeling this paper has for the Divide and the hearty co-operation it has made everything that is helpful to the Divide. We shall be very glad at an early date to give Palmer Lake and vicinity a write up that will be amply satisfactory.

The results of the recent election in Canada have been a revelation to the people of this country. It was said, and tacitly, that the people of this country felt not much interest in the subject of annexation and still less of a desire for its accomplishment. The circumstances and result of the recent election have, however, been such as to render it probable that in the near future the question will be forced upon us whether we will or no, and the educational effect in this country of this last election has already been great. In this connection the following, from the New York Tribune, will be of interest:

The liberals were drawn into a fight without notice, they were unprepared. They had not [illegible] for the most urgently [illegible] [illegible] As we say [illegible] in politics comparable in intensity and severity only with the Ohio [illegible] in 1875. In Canada, they were [illegible] in [illegible] of at least twenty [illegible] of the electorate would naturally fall to them. All of the powerful [illegible] and [illegible] interests were at work heavily for Sir John. The appeal [illegible] to church establishments as against the freedom of worship and religious equality. He appealed [illegible] to the British connection. He represented [illegible] that nobody was willing to [illegible] The opposition was [illegible] beaten.

In view of these facts it must be granted that the liberals did [illegible] well. The course [illegible] in so shaping the campaign as [illegible] United States tariff in favor of a British [illegible] for annexation. The publication of Mr. Farrer's [illegible] pamphlet, and the [illegible] of his letter with Sir Richard Cartwright, together with the significant [illegible] of the Grit leaders to declare that [illegible] must be an evil fate, converted [illegible] into a battle between a policy of [illegible] and a policy of anything but [illegible] and [illegible] those who objected to politics [illegible] with the waters into the very jaws of [illegible] whether they favored protection and anybody or not. The "ridiculous" cry must be hurled at the liberals without [illegible] any adhesive support, for the annexationists they had anyhow, while among the [illegible] there must have been a considerable [illegible] who, though willing to trade freely with the states, were not at all minded to join them. Of course, coming from such a politician as Sir John Macdonald, it was a very amusing howl. Let us hope, another bit of sharp practice [illegible] by the same cunning hand, it did what it was meant to do. It did more, and here is where the supreme folly of such tricks [illegible] Perhaps a little [illegible] is made out to Sir John, he has drawn [illegible] the direct interest on, not [illegible] fully half of them disapprove of him and his policy but are actually tired of their allegiance, and wish to transfer it and their [illegible] to another land. A victory accompanied by such a revelation or publication must be only endurance less painful than defeat.

THE SUNDAY GAZETTE.

The Sunday GAZETTE will contain among other attractive items a new story by Julian Hawthorne entitled Judith Arsyniga. It is now printed for the first time and is of great interest. It deals with psychology and its incidents are genuinely thrilling.

Robert Louis Stevenson's South Sea articles are being printed simultaneously in this country and England. The American publication has been progressing more rapidly than the English, so they were suspended last week in order to allow the mail steamer papers to catch up. A fresh installment will appear to-morrow with four original illustrations. The letter deals especially with the cannibals, their wars and their feasts.

The great Spanish republican leader, Castelar, contributes an article on Charles Bradlaugh, the English radical whose death occurred recently. His characterization is clear and strong, and he does not hesitate either to praise or blame.

The sixth "Letter to Young Citizens" gives the youthful and earnest exposition of the necessity of obedience to law, by [illegible] Cuyler, of Indiana.

[illegible] has another of his interesting articles on Japan; this one being especially devoted to Japanese children, and Japanese amusements for young and old.

An article of unusual worth and [illegible] interest is entitled "High Class Fasting for Sanity and Health." Of late years there has been a reaction among the wealthy and cultured classes towards a country life. In the article Shirley Dare tells in an interesting manner what right culture of the soil can do for mind, body and estate, and argues that the truest luxury is to be had with rural living.

Theodore Stanton talks of Mazzini and Garibaldi, with reflections of the Austro-Prussian war and of suffering in European prisons, and graphically describes a single hundred conflict with the Italian government.

Bill Nye rises quite above his usual level, on a flying machine as per illustration, reviews the history of the efforts of genius in this line, and bids us to be wary of scorning crazy persons who may attain success and lasting fame.

There will be the usual department and a complete telegraphic report from all parts of the world.

RAILROAD BREVITIES.

The citizens of Tacoma have guaranteed $100,000 for Union Pacific railroad terminals at that point.

There is a railroad in Georgia 300 miles in length which has been in operation since 1845, and never killed a passenger.

It is said that thirty-four railroads have signed the agreement to discontinue the payment of commissions on the sales of tickets.

The [illegible] from Pensacola, Fla., and reach Nashville, Tenn., a distance of 600 miles, in forty-eight hours. This, it is claimed, is the fastest freight time on record.

The Baldwin Locomotive works during the year 1890 built 503 new locomotives besides doing a good deal of repairing. The Schenectady Locomotive works built 337 machines during the same year.

The Youngstown, the private car of General Manager Patton, of the Pittsburg and Western, was burned at Pittsburg recently. The porter built a fire in the stove preparatory to a trip, and a half hour later the whole interior was in flames. Loss, $12,000.

A branch of the Railroad Men's Christian Association has been organized at Pueblo, the railroads furnishing a fine room and a library. John Brunton, formerly with the Bee line at Indianapolis, has been appointed superintendent and librarian.

The Indiana supreme court has decided in a case affecting the Pennsylvania company that, where the wrong coupon on a return ticket is taken by the conductor in the first case, the passenger cannot be rejected for having the wrong coupon for the return.

Through sleeping cars do not run between northern points and Florida. The reason is that if the practice was once commenced each northern line might want one, and the southern connections would be swamped with a concentration of palace cars beyond the capacity of their engines to pull.

Mr. F. W. Connors, now a conductor on the Susquehanna division of the Erie, claims that in the twelve years spent as a brakeman he made the biggest time ever put in by one man employed by the Erie. Here are his figures: In 1868, 409 days; 1874, 349; 1875, 434; 1876, 377; 1877, 388; 1878, 312½; 1879, 355 50; 1880, 430½; 1881, 415½; 1882, 413½; 1883, 313; 1885, 317.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELRY.

The miniature is being employed to ornament cuff buttons and bracelet clasps.

A book mark is in the form of a mason's trowel, of silver, with an ivory handle.

A handsome shoe horn is made of ivory and has a heavy silver handle, elaborately chased.

A massive silver girdle is designed to represent a heavy rope. At one end is a large silver book, and at the other an eyelet with the rope apparently affixed and bound with a cord.

Silver brooches and vinaigrettes decorated in enamel are now shown. The shapes are generally plain, and in no wise odd or striking, but the enameled designs are very pretty and sometimes even elaborate.

A novel design for a pocket corkscrew appeared in a jeweler's window lately. When closed the instrument presented the appearance of a crab's claw, which opened on both sides, disclosing the essential part of the article.

A novelty in cane heads has just been produced by a New York jeweler. It is a [illegible] which, when [illegible] opened, discloses the surface of a half dollar. The coin, however, is only the outer cover of a series of leaves on which photographs may be placed. There are spaces for eight portraits.

The Bernhardt brooch is one of the latest pieces of fancy jewelry placed on the market. It is shown in several styles. One is of silver about the size of a half dollar, with a bust relief of Joan of Arc arrayed in full armor with a banner in her hand. It is set in a frame of jet, line enamel and small diamonds.—Jewelers' Monthly.

TURF NOTES.

An effort is being made in several state legislatures to pass laws to stop the practice of what is known as "doping" a jockey.

In Dakota, which is the great horse country of Europe, they never put blinders on a horse and a sliding door is almost unknown.

Frank McCabe has sold the Maxwell chestnut filly Flavia to Fred Goldard, and that gentleman has changed her name to Kathleen.

D. Cooper, the Australian millionaire, who is now in England, recently purchased the mare Mosquita, the granddam of Dandenong, for $15,000.

A number of prominent horsemen at Lexington, Ky., have indorsed Col. R. F. Ramon Sam for chief of the live stock department of the World's fair at Chicago.

The Chicago Horseman says that what concealed among trotting tracks is a spirit of extravagance in the direction of affording the proper amount of variety in the way of racing.

Fred Goldard, C. W. Aby and Matt Stein have compromised their suit for damages against the Erie railway on account of the Shadeland wreck. Mr. Goldard received about eleven of Mr. Aby's $17,000 and Mr. Stein $7,000.

At a public sale of thoroughbreds at Auckland, New Zealand, the famous stallion Nordenfeldt became the property of Samuel Hordon, of Sydney, N. S. W., for $2,000. D. C. Ross, of San Francisco, Cal., was a competing bidder, but stopped at $1,900.

The name of J. Porter, the lightweight jockey, does not appear in the table of winning jockeys of his mount to victory in 1890. At Nashville he averaged one winner a day for twenty-three consecutive days.

The Life of New York's Rich, Young Bachelors.

Luxurious Apartments of Millionaires' Sons.

Bric a Brac, Paintings, and Rare Panelling.

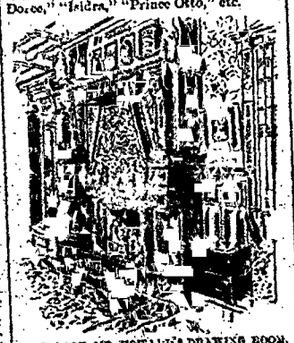
[Copyright by American Press Association.]

FIREPLACE, MR. HOWARD'S DRAWING ROOM.

FAMAN begins to be a bachelor as soon as he is born, and remains one till he is married, after the Italian idea, then George Vanderbilt, the son of William K. Vanderbilt, although a minor, is one of the "bachelors" of New York society. Naturally he has not yet scoured for himself or built him a nest away from the family mansion, and if comfort and luxury have power to weave a spell young Mr. Vanderbilt will not desert his beautiful suit of rooms on the third floor of the great stone palace on Fifth avenue for some time to come.

His rooms, which are four in number, were decorated and furnished under the loving superintendence of Mrs. Vanderbilt, who takes more and livelier interest in them than in all the rest of her house and houses. She selected the furniture and bargained [illegible] and [illegible] of the books of the bijou library three years ago last spring while her son was in Europe with his father. With the exception of one room, the smallest of the four, the suit is keyed to a restful absence of bright and dazzling colors. The anteroom, which is a good sized chamber in itself, is hung with gobelin tapestries, not antique, but without any glaring tints.

The library is in oak, with a wreath of gold flowers forming frieze and dado. Richly carved chairs of almost unique design—the Empire style predominating, however—stand about, inviting to rest or lounge, and the dwarf bookcases are of magnificent old black oak. A very serious and studious young man George Vanderbilt is said to be. He writes very melodious and worthy verses, and his tastes in literature incline to biography and history. In fiction he prefers the sonorous romances, like "The Gallant Lords of Bois-Dorcee," "Isidra," "Prince Otto," etc.

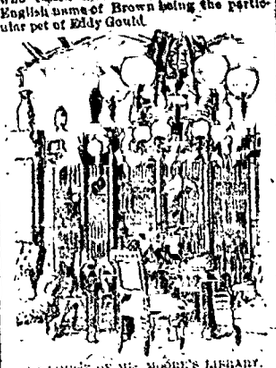


MR. MOORE'S BRIC-A-BRAC DISPLAY.

lamented death was a portrait of Mr. Redmond. It now stands, with an embroidered velvet curtain over it, in the remote corner of Mr. Redmond's parlor. This room is very long and deep—for that is the way they build in New York—with very high ceilings; but so many beautiful and artistic trifles have been gathered here so many art treasures are displayed in the most attractive way, that all the defects of the room are lost sight of.

Mr. Redmond has been guided by exquisite taste in his selection of pictures, bric-a-brac and curios, and he has beyond doubt an artistic soul or he could never produce [illegible] [illegible] with [illegible] things as these. Behind this [illegible] the lift and [illegible] [illegible] at this overlooking [illegible] square. [illegible] of [illegible] is the [illegible] room. [illegible] Admirable [illegible] fitted that one almost doubts it is to exercise charge of servants. As a whole, the house displeases what seems to be a common error, that man cannot live alone without covering the room with cigar ashes and filling his handsomest vases with burned matches.

Eddy Gould, the tall, dark and slender second son of the great financier, has filled his two rooms at Irvington with all the paraphernalia of the sportsman. Foils, rapiers, boxing gloves, dumbbells crowd bric-a-brac of the same order, an ancient suit of armor, a "pot" helmet and swords of many kinds and very valuable. Mrs. Terry, the dignified housekeeper at Irvington, complains that these cutlery dish things never stay in their places, but are every morning scattered through the rooms and even in the hall. Another feature of this young man's apartment is the number of pictures representing duels, fistic encounters, hunting and racing scenes; but let not the common prints of the sporting halls be called up by these items, for every picture is an oil or water color by a good artist, one by the celebrated French artist who called himself by the extremely English name of Brown being the particular pet of Eddy Gould.



A CORNER OF MR. MOORE'S LIBRARY.

One might think that an ardent club man and tireless German Rader like Mr. Tom Howard would hardly care for an apartment of his own, and in fact for a number of years the comforts of the Knickerbocker were "all the comforts of home" for him. But he has kept in the fashion by taking an apartment only a stone's throw from that famous club, which he has fitted up in all modern luxury. Chairs as china and stiff, angular chairs appear to have no attraction for him. He has preferred to go in thoroughly for deep, soft divans, great easy chairs, velvet lounges, with springs that surprise one by their flexibility, as if one were Derlishoof himself and had never before seen their like. The pictures on the walls are of the modern French school a good landscape or two and those fascinating ballet girls who emerge all fresh and unrumpled from the studio of Jan Van Beers. Everything is in good taste because all articles of furniture, carpets, draperies and bric-a-brac harmonize; there is no clashing of epochs, and although one might search in vain for anything significant of the owner, yet the apartment as a whole is very significant, for it reveals by the very absence of salient things the rounded character of a man of the world.

Nevertheless, that a man of the world can impress himself on his apartment is shown by that of Mr. J. Ridgway Moore. This is one of the largest as well as the best known of the bachelor apartments of New York city. The proprietor is as fond of entertaining as he is abundantly able, and his petit soupers or dinners before a dance or after a theatre party are events of the winter so delightful that they are the envy of hostesses who attend them.

Mr. Moore's apartment in the former jockey club house is extensive; the rooms are well lighted and large, and although filled with furniture of the Sheraton make, they look, nevertheless, like a library or its adjunct. The "gentleman of the house" is a collector of rare books, as well as an omnivorous reader of all contemporaneous literature, and he has found his library too small to hold his encroaching possessions. The books fill the tables, chairs and corners of every room, and after every season of a thorough weeding out has to be inaugurated or else the owner must stow himself away at the Brunswick.

This apartment has a modern look, it is true, but it contains many articles of rare virtu, notably a jardiniere in green bronze from Rome, which is at once the admiration and despair of every feminine visitor. It was said at the time of the sale of Allen Thorndyke Rice's effects that there was but one man in New York who could equal it—although a more unlikely event could hardly happen—and that man was Ridgeway Moore.

FRANCIS LEMOINE.

Regulating Religion in Russia.

The autocratic government of Russia has several big jobs on hand. The chief one of course is the suppression of all political action antagonistic to the policy of the czar's advisers. Then there is the fierce but as yet unsuccessful attempt to suppress the Hebrews as a religious body. Apparently these two problems are not enough to occupy the attention of the imperial ministers, for they have recently turned hostile eyes upon the German colonies, which are declared to be the leading factor in the spread of the doctrines of Stundism in southern Russia. The Stundists are a Protestant sect, mostly Russians from the Eastern church, formed in 1817 by colonists of Wurtemburg, and numbering in 1889 more than a million adherents. The formulas of the Stundists closely resemble those of the Anabaptists. They repudiate the sacraments and demand an equal distribution of property. A synod of the Eastern church recently anathematized the Stundists and pronounced them to be guilty of blasphemy. The Russian government proposes to place special restrictions upon the entry of German immigrants into southern Russia, and to curtail the privileges allowed to those already resident within Russian territory.

The Language of Sealing Wax.

There are various signs or symbols by which the sentimental may express the emotions of love, friendship, illness and anger. The eyes are potent in this regard, and there is said to be a regular code of handkerchief signals. The list of agents employed now includes sealing wax, which is again in fashion as a means of fastening letter envelopes. An epistle conveying a proposal of marriage, says a London paper, must be sealed with white wax, while accepted lovers may use ruby color. Jealousy is expressed by yellow wax, blue implies constancy and brown melancholy, green suggests hope, and a paler shade of green conveys a refusal. A letter of condolence should be [illegible] violet seal in reference to the black [illegible] signifying death [illegible] [illegible] time is still used [illegible] dinner display [illegible] seals, and the young ladies [illegible] their correspondence with pink and gray is [illegible] [illegible] sweet.

Eight Men Rescued by a Dog.

The dog has long been known as the faithful friend of man, but it is rarely that one hears of so remarkable an instance of canine courage and devotion as the following: During the gale which blew the other day at Halifax, N. S., the fishing schooner Senator Morgan, of Gloucester, Mass., dashed ashore at Cow Bay, a point east of that port. The sea was so high that it meant certain death to try and land on the rocky beach. The crew then lighted a fire on deck. This was done in order to attract attention to their perilous position. The boat was named Moses, and people living in the vicinity listened to the scene and made every effort to afford assistance. The crew of the Senator Morgan threw a rope overboard containing a life line, but it did not make for land. The brothers Mosher were fortunately accompanied by their dog, which they encouraged to enter the foaming water. The animal with marvelous energy swam out to the tub, secured the line and brought it to shore. A hawser by this means was hauled to the beach, and the Senator Morgan's crew, eight in all, assisted by its help in a crawling hand and with great difficulty and after many exciting efforts.

It costs money to provide amusement for the people. The budget of the Paris Opera house, recently made public, shows that there are 700 people on the salary list. Members of the chorus get $21 a year each. The leader of the orchestra has a salary of $2,400, and the dancers receive compensation ranging in amount from $600 annually to $9,000. The entire expenditure is little less than $[illegible] a month.

No Reciprocity.

Parnell's Manifesto.

LONDON, March 13.—The following manifesto was issued by Mr Parnell this evening.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, March 13 91

To the Irish People of America

FELLOW COUNTRYMEN. In 1880 and subsequent years you testified the power of Ireland's public opinion upon your generous financial support to create the great movement of the land agitation. Without your aid so freely given and so ungrudgingly maintained, Ireland could not for one moment have withstood the combined pressure. Still less could she have maintained the struggle for the rights of the people and the security of homes she has recovered during the last five years.

At the moment when victory seemed within our grasp, the hydra of Home Rule has raised its head in the House of Commons. Ireland's representatives have [illegible] to the Liberal party, and the Liberal party has responded by [illegible] Home Rule. Ireland's representatives have [illegible]

By a vote of the South Congregational church last Wednesday evening the name was changed to read "The Second Congregational church of Colorado Springs."

The Midland cars delayed by the big snow blockade at Ivanhoe arrived yesterday. The goods in transit were little injured by the delay, even the California fruit being unharmed.

Work was begun yesterday tearing out the brick building on Tejon street lately occupied by H. Le B. Wills, to make room for the new brick to be erected by Mr. E. W. Bennett. The cost will be about $4000.

George H. Nicolai, advance agent of Stair's comedy company, "A Barrel of Whisky," arrived in the city yesterday to arrange for the appearance of the company next Saturday evening. The company is headed by the soubrette, Gracie Emmett.

At the First Congregational church services will be held to-morrow at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. The pastor, Rev. James B. Green, will preach both morning and evening. The subject in the evening will be "Character Building Through the Church."

Second Congregational church services to-morrow at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. Subject in the morning: "Congregational." This being the first of a series of sermons on the polity of our churches, the evening will be taken up with a short service of song followed by a short address on a gospel topic.

Geo. T. Swetman, secretary of the Colorado Real Estate Exchange company, yesterday closed a sale of six lots in Roby's addition to Colorado Springs for $1100. The purchasers will at once put up nice residences on these lots which will have a tendency to boom real estate in the direction of Prospect Lake.

A change in the Santa Fe time table, taking effect to-morrow, Sunday, brings the Chicago through train at 8.05 a. m. instead of 6.55. This will make a better date for our business men who desire to spend a day in Denver. Also the eastbound "Nelly Bly" leaves for Pueblo and Canon City ten minutes earlier.

The choir of the First Congregational church of this city is composed of trained singers, and we may be prepared to hear some finished unaccompanied quartette singing at the concerts to be given Thursday evenings, April 9th and 16th, tickets for sale by ladies of the Congregational church, and at the usual stands down town.

Mrs. Ellen Howell of Jeffersonville, Indiana, died in this city yesterday at noon. Mrs. Howell was the mother of Mr. R. B. Howell, well known to our citizens, and who is now lying at the point of death, having been an invalid for my years. Two months ago Mrs. Howell came to this city to nurse her son and about five weeks ago was taken with inflammatory rheumatism and has never since been able to leave her bed. Mrs. Howell was 65 years of age and a very amiable lady. She has known a great deal of sorrow, her family having been severely afflicted. Mrs. Irwin, a daughter of Mrs. Howell, has been in attendance upon her mother and brother for three weeks. The remains will not be interred for the present.

Prosperous Colorado Springs owes much of its success to lovely Manitou. This charming spot is known throughout the continent. While not wishing to detract from the picturesque beauty of Manitou's surroundings, it is true nevertheless that Colorado has many nooks of natural scenery fully equal to the much lauded Garden of the Gods. But it is the case of scenery and lack of living that has endeared that place to the way of family. It is so easy for a wife and children to be able to "live out" with all the little conveniences ble adjuncts of civilized life within arm's length. Glenwood Springs might emulate this example. There are many charming spots of enticing loveliness and wild beauty within easy drive of Glenwood, and these should be made much of by constructing pleasant drives and building road houses or lodges where needed.—[The Carbondale Avalanche.

The dance by the "S. S. S. S." club at Whitbeck's hall last evening was a sort of "twilight picnic" as the arc lights burned out early in the evening and the primitive lamp was resorted to. The young people present thoroughly enjoyed the event.
